Anita Nevar

Queen of Pop Erotica

Anita Nevar is an Erotic Pop Artist in Australia, known for her bold stance on creative self-expression. After escaping a doomsday cult, domestic violence, and repression, she transformed her life as a painter and has spent the past 20 years empowering others to find personal freedom so they can be proud of who they are.

Her artwork, found hanging in private collections worldwide, has featured in notable venues and exhibitions celebrating sex-positive diversity, including the Sydney Gay and Lesbian Mardi Gras, in the head office of Lovehoney; the world's largest sexual wellness retailer, and at Sexpo's Sexuality and Lifestyle Expo where Anita was the resident erotic artist. In addition, her artwork was chosen to furnish the walls of the hit reality TV series Big Brother, and she has appeared on the UK TV series 'Frisky Business'.

Art is essential for our mental health and helps us make sense of the world. Effective leaders in creative self-expression not only inspire others to fall in love with themselves but also help recognize there is beauty in us all. Anita helps her clients transform their living spaces with provocative edgy artwork, that exudes pride, love, and big-hearted acceptance. Another more thrilling aspect of hanging such masterpieces in your home, is how it speaks to each viewer in a unique way and opens the door for more tantalizing topics of conversation.

Anita Collaborates with celebrities, musicians, photographers, fashion and interior designers, and other artists, to create artwork that inspires people to liberate themselves from societal prejudices, so they can express their sexuality, love, and creativity freely.

As an LGBTQ+ advocate with a love for kink and queer arts, Anita is currently working on several new painting collections including the vibrant world of drag. Her autobiography is soon to be released and turned into a documentary to inspire others they can create a life they love despite adversity. With several celebrity commissions now also on her easel, she is honored to be painting the vivacious Forbes Riley, Queen of Pitch, who's passion and big heart is making a momentous impact on the world as we speak.

Anita would love to help you with Original Paintings and Private Commissions to touch your heart and spice up your space. For more information, visit her website at anitanevar.com.
